SUMMARY OF CONTENT: The findings from this book are a product of a 2-year study of emerging business leaders, and identify trends for the future. A focal point of the book is the importance of embracing diversity in the workplace, as well as the importance of both shared learning and shared leadership model of business. The authors reference global companies, which provide a helpful perspective to challenges faced when expanding a business. Parallels can be drawn to the healthcare and academic settings from these global experiences.
