It’s an honor to serve as President of the Public Management Research Association (PMRA). I look forward to working with a very talented Board of Directors and you, our membership, to provide services and opportunities that promote top quality public management research and practice.

One of my goals as a senior scholar and baby boomer is to continue involving and handing over the reins of leadership of our Association to the younger generations of scholars. Younger scholars are already much in evidence in the leadership of PMRA. We have to look no further than the roster of Board members; the wonderful organizing skills of Susan Webb Yackee and Donald Moynihan, our hosts for the Madison 2013 PMRC; the current JPART Managing Editor Craig Thomas; or the incoming Managing Editor Bradley Wright. I also want to applaud the wonderful management services provided by our secretariat, Holly Goerdel, at the University of Kansas.

As PMRA celebrates our 22nd year, we will take stock of how we can continue to provide for PMRA’s future while carrying out our well-established services.

In the rest of this short column, I want to focus on conference wrap-up and upcoming PMRA organized conferences you can attend.

First, Don and Susan have sent a conference evaluation survey to attendees of our recent Madison PMRC. If you attended the June conference, you should have received reminders to fill out the survey - with an email heading of “PMRC Survey Reminder” - from events@regonline.com which is the University of Wisconsin Student Union survey site. The survey will be closing soon and we would appreciate your feedback and ideas for future conferences. John Bryson, the Chair of the 2015 PMRA program committee, has a number of questions on the survey asking your preferences for preconference sessions and formats, so please take the plunge and tell us what you think.

Second, Ken Meier and Vicky Wilkins are leading the program committee that is planning a mini-PMRA conference program nested within the Southern Political Science Association (SPSA) Conference to be held in New Orleans, LA January 9-11, 2014. A final call for proposals went out August 19th. We hope you will be able to attend the SPSA conference and our panels there, which will give a clearer focus at SPSA on public administration and management research than what has been offered in recent years. We hope to make this a yearly track to supplement the biennial PMRA U.S. conferences.
Arizona State University welcomes six new faculty and a new Director. Karen Mossberger, Professor, is the new Director of the School of Public Affairs. Derrick Anderson, Assistant Professor, recently completed his Ph.D. at the University of Georgia. Barry Bozeman is the Arizona Centennial Professor of Technology Policy and Public Management and the Director of the Center for Organizational Research and Design (CORD) at Arizona State University. Prof. Bozeman received the PMRA’s 2013 Frederickson Career Award. Benedicte Callan has accepted an appointment as Clinical Professor at Arizona State University in the School of Public Affairs. Ethan Kapstein is Professor and Senior Director for Research and Decision Analysis at the McCain Institute for International Leadership and has an appointment in the School of Public Affairs. David Swindell, Associate Professor, is the new Director of the Center for Urban Innovation at Arizona State University and a member of the faculty in the School of Public Affairs. Linda Williams, Assistant Professor at Arizona State University, recently completed her Ph.D. at the University of Kansas. David Mitchell has accepted a visiting assistant professor position at Indiana University-Purdue University Indianapolis, School of Public and Environmental Affairs.

Finally, the 2014 third International Public Management Research Conference will be held at Seoul National University (SNU) in Seoul, Korea June 29-July 1, 2014. Dr. Tobin Im is the conference co-chair from SNU. The conference will be conducted in PMRC tradition, with our sessions held on the SNU campus. There is a hotel on the SNU campus that many participants can use.

PMRA is co-sponsoring the conference with the Korean Association for Policy Studies and the International Research Society for Public Management, so it should be a rich and substantive conference. We are finalizing the Call for Proposals and will have that out to our membership in October. So save the dates and mark your 2014 calendar for the Seoul PMRA conference.

Frances S. Berry
Florida State University

2012 Beryl Radin Award Recipients Selected

The Beryl Radin Award recognizes the author or author(s) who published the best article in the Journal of Public Administration Research and Theory during a given year. For the 2012 award, we are pleased to announce the award committee chose the article by Stéphane Lavertu, Daniel Walters and David Weimer for their article entitled, “Scientific Expertise and the Balance of Political Interests: MEDCAC and Medicare Coverage Decisions” (Volume 22, pp. 55-81).

The committee found the article by Lavertu and colleagues to be a clear, careful, concise analysis of an important, yet understudied, institutional design issue that is highly relevant to public administration—how scientific and professional expertise are integrated into agency decisionmaking. Setting their analysis in historical, legal, and conceptual contexts, the authors analyze their question with careful data construction, measure operationalization, and methodological inquiry. The authors pursue a number of sensitivity checks, building confidence in their basic findings but stopping short of claiming to have found causal mechanisms. Lavertu and colleagues describe their analysis as “only a start” but one that, in the committee’s opinion, is an exemplary research effort in support of JPART’s goal to “serve as a bridge between public administration and public management scholarship on one hand and public policy studies on the other.”

The Beryl Radin Award was formally presented to the article authors at the June 2013 Public Management Research Conference in Madison, Wisconsin.

We extend a special thanks to the
This was an exceptional level of service by the committee and a corresponding extraordinary achievement by the award winners. We thank all for their important contributions to the Journal of Public Administration Research and Theory.

JPART’s Report

JPART has enjoyed another banner year. The most recent impact factor rankings show that JPART continues to be the top cited journal in the fields of public administration and public policy when calculated on a five-year rolling average. On a yearly basis, JPART has been ranked either #1 or #2 since 2005.

JPART’s reputational success has been accompanied by a steady rise in the number of submissions. From 2005-2009, the average number of submissions each year was 215. From 2010-2012, the average increased to 297. Meanwhile, the acceptance rate has hovered between 11% and 14% over the last several years. Thus, JPART remains a highly selective journal publishing articles that are well-cited in the field, as demonstrated by the continually high impact factor.

Many thanks also go to the Board of Editors and all others reviewers. Your reviews have been instrumental in ensuring only the best work is published in JPART. I would also like to thank past co-editors Keith Provan, Jodi Sandfort, and Anne Khademian. All of the co-editors have provided an immense amount of service to keep the journal functioning at a high level of efficiency and quality.

Finally, I would like to extend a special thanks to Jo Ferrier at Oxford Journals, who for the last five years has done an amazing job managing the online submissions process and moving accepted manuscripts through to publication.

It has been an honor to edit the journal, and I wish Bradley Wright every success when he becomes editor. I am fully convinced he will be a great editor and that the journal will be in excellent hands.

Craig Thomas, University of Washington

Rosemary O’Leary, Edwin O’Stene Distinguished Professor of Public Administration at the University of Kansas, School of Public Affairs and Administration, has been awarded the Axford Fellowship to work with the New Zealand government for 7 months on issues concerning collaboration.

Meghna Sabharwal (University of Texas at Dallas) and Evan M. Berman (Victoria University of Wellington) co-edited a new book entitled Public Administration in South Asia: India, Bangladesh, and Pakistan (CRC Press). Meghna Sabharwal also received a two-year National Science Foundation Grant to study return migration of academic scientists and engineers from the US to India.

University of Texas at Dallas welcomes two new faculty. Evgenia Gorina received her PhD from Arizona State University. She studies public finance and budgeting and is particularly interested in tax policy, fiscal rules, and institutions. James Harrington received his PhD from the Truman School of Public Affairs at the University of Missouri. He primarily studies issues related to performance management, performance data usage, policy evaluation, and education governance.
The University of Kansas, School of Public Affairs and Administration welcomes three new full-time assistant professors this fall. Rachel Krause focuses on issues of urban sustainability, and particularly the motivations, implementation, and consequences of greenhouse gas abatement efforts being taken at the local level. Bradley Lane researches travel behavior, policy, and planning issues in urban transportation. And, Shannon Portillo studies organizational theories rooted in public administration and law and society to explore how rules and policies are carried out within public organizations. John Ronquillo (DePaul University) has been named MPA director of the School of Public Service. Sergio Fernandez (Indiana University) has been appointed director for the Ph.D. programs in Public Affairs and Public Policy.

The Indiana University Bloomington School of Public and Environmental Affairs announces the addition of four full time public management faculty members: Associate Professor, Claudia Avellaneda studies international development, local governments and politics in Latin America, and international and comparative public management. Associate Professor, Jill Nicholson-Crotty focuses on public and

Highlights from the 12th Public Management Research Conference in Madison, WI: Our Largest Yet

After two years of waiting, the 2013 Public Management Research Conference (PMRC) was held at the University of Wisconsin-Madison, from June 20-22.

The meeting began with three preconference workshops on the morning and afternoon of June 20. These preconference activities represented a new initiative and focused on public management research in Latin America, East and South East Asia, and Europe. Traditional panels were held on Thursday afternoon, as well as all day Friday and Saturday.

On Thursday evening, participants enjoyed an outdoor reception at the Wisconsin Union overlooking Lake Mendota. The Friday reception was held at the new Wisconsin Institutes of Discovery.

Some basic statistics suggest that the PMRC continues to grow. In total, 373 individuals registered for the conference, making it the largest conference yet. As a point of reference, the 2011 conference at Syracuse University had about 310 participants.

The Madison conference was also the most international, with 28% of participants from outside the US, representing 22 different countries. In terms of country breakdown, Denmark had the most attendees from a single country with 25 participants. PRMC continues to draw a high proportion of new and younger attendees, as well. Thirty-eight percent of attendees indicated that this was the first time they attended a PMRC event and 30% of attendees were graduate students.

Conference Organizers, Don Moynihan and Susan Webb Yackee with first time attendee Gregory Lewis
Even as the PMRC becomes grows, it continues to depend primarily upon PMRA members to organize it, rather than a full-time staff of conference organizers. We feel deeply honored to have served in this role, but also depended upon more PMRA members than we could thank, who stepped into roles large and small and made the conference a success.

We look forward to working with the next hosts, the University of Minnesota, to continue this tradition.

Conference papers remain online, and additional conference pictures can be viewed at http://www.union.wisc.edu/pmra2013/photos.html.

Don Moynihan & Susan Webb Yackee

Edward T. Jennings, Jr. (University of Kentucky) has been appointed Provost’s Distinguished Service Professor in the Martin School of Public Policy and Administration.

Professor David M. Van Slyke of the Department of Public Administration and International Affairs in the Maxwell School of Citizenship and Public Affairs at Syracuse University has been named the Louis A. Bantle Chair in Business and Government Policy. Professor Van Slyke’s research, teaching, and executive training focus on public and nonprofit management topics and specifically on government contracting, public-private partnerships, policy implementation, strategic management, and philanthropy.

Cullen C. Merritt, doctoral candidate at the University of Kansas, was a recipient of the $5,000 Summer Research Fellowship from KU’s Office of Graduate Studies.

Incoming PMRA President Frances Berry and JPART Editor-in-Chief Ken Meier

2012 Beryl Radin Award Recipients David Weimer, Stéphane Lavertu, and Daniel Walters
Allen Lai (National University of Singapore) will be the new Director at the Institute for Health Economics and Management, ESSEC Business School Paris-Singapore (Asian Center).

Beth Walter Honadle (University of Cincinnati) will be Director of the Program Monitoring and Research Division in the Office of Policy Development and Research at the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development in Washington, DC.

Rich Callahan (University of San Francisco, School of Management) has been elected Chair of the Department of Public and Nonprofit Administration. Also, Dr. Callahan was awarded by the School of Management, Teacher of the Year for all graduate programs across the private, public, and nonprofit sectors in the school.

Jeffrey D. Straussman, former Dean of the Rockefeller College of Public Affairs and Policy, University at Albany, returned to the College after a two year leave at the Lee Kuan Yew School of Public Policy where he was Professor and Vice Dean for Executive Education.

Susan Webb Yackee has been appointed as the new Director of the La Follette School of Public Affairs at the University of Wisconsin-Madison. She has also received a $500,000

Position Announcements

University of Southern California (4 positions)

The University of Southern California, Sol Price School of Public Policy is seeking applicants for four faculty positions in Public Administration/Management and Nonprofits & Philanthropy.

Junior Faculty Positions in Public Administration/Management, Position Description and Qualifications: The University of Southern California’s Sol Price School of Public Policy invites applications for tenure-track faculty positions from individuals conducting interesting and important research in any area of public administration or management. We seek to hire two new junior colleagues who will contribute to research and teaching that support the public administration programs in the School. Applicants must hold a Ph.D. in a related field.

Applicants should submit a letter of interest, curriculum vitae and list of three references. Please apply online at: https://jobs.usc.edu/applicants/Central?quickFind=70790. Screening of applications will begin 15 September 2013 and continue until the positions are filled.

Junior Faculty Positions in Nonprofits and Philanthropy, Position Description and Qualifications: The University of Southern California’s Sol Price School of Public Policy invites applications for tenure-track faculty positions from individuals conducting interesting and important research in nonprofit organizations, philanthropy, or social innovation. We seek to hire two new junior colleagues who will contribute to research and teaching that support the nonprofit and public administration programs in the School. Applicants must hold a Ph.D. in a related field.

Applicants should submit a letter of interest, curriculum vitae and list of three references. Please apply online at: https://jobs.usc.edu/applicants/Central?quickFind=70791. Screening of applications will begin 15 September 2013 and continue until the positions are filled.

About the Sol Price School of Public Policy: The mission of the Sol Price School of Public Policy is to improve the quality of life for people and their communities, here and abroad. We achieve this mission through education and research that promote innovative solutions to the most critical issues facing society, with a particular focus on governance, urban development, and social policy. The Price School offers Ph.D. programs in Public Policy and Management and in Urban Planning and Development; masters degrees in Public Administration, Public Policy, Urban Planning, Health Administration, and Real Estate Development; executive masters degrees; and an interdisciplinary undergraduate degree.

USC is one of the world’s premiere research universities and the Price School is a major contributor to the university’s reputation. Our school supports an array of thematic research centers with $41 million in active sponsored research, ranking third overall in funded research at USC on a per faculty basis. Much of the school’s research is conducted through its centers, institutes, and re-
Grant from the Burroughs Wellcome Fund to undertake a new research project on regulatory policymaking.

The University of Georgia’s School of Public and International Affairs (SPIA) welcomes Stefanie Lindquist as dean. Dean Lindquist is past interim and associate dean of the University of Texas Law School. SPIA’s Department of Public Administration and Policy also welcomes two new faculty. Assistant Professor, Robert A. Greer (Ph.D., University of Kentucky) specializes in issues of local government debt and fiscal federalism. Assistant Professor, Rebecca Nesbit (Ph.D., Indiana University) specializes in nonprofit studies, volunteering and volunteer management research. And, Robert K. Christensen (Ph.D., Indiana University) was promoted to associate professor. Dr. Christensen specializes in public management.

Professors Trevor Brown, Matthew Potoski, and David Van Slyke published a book titled Complex Contracting: Government Procurement in the Wake of the US Coast Guard’s Deepwater Program (Cambridge University Press).

The Rockefeller College of Public Affairs and Policy at the University at Albany-SUNY is pleased to add two financial management specialists to their public administration and policy faculty. Gang
Chen recently received a Ph.D. in Public Administration from the University of Nebraska at Omaha. His dissertation examines the relationship between fiscal stress and public pensions in U.S. state governments. David Matkin joins the Rockefeller College after six years at the Askew School of Public Administration at Florida State University. David is a graduate of the University of Kansas and was recently elected to the executive committee of the Association for Budgeting and Financial Management (ABFM).

The American Political Science Association (APSA) announced the creation of the APSA Pracademic Program supported by the Beryl Radin Fund.

The University of Connecticut Department of Public Policy recently hired three new faculty members. Eric Brunner is an accomplished researcher in the areas of local public finance, the economics of education, and political economy. Kerri Raissian recently earned her Ph.D. in Public Administration from the Maxwell School of Citizenship and Public Affairs at Syracuse University. Her research interests focus on child and family policy. Doug Spencer recently graduated with a Ph.D. in Jurisprudence and Social Policy from the University of California, Berkeley. Doug is jointly appointed with a related field. Candidates with an expected completion date of June 2014 are encouraged to apply.

The Department’s primary interest is to hire a candidate who has a commitment to teaching quantitative analysis, research design and methodologies to graduate students. In addition, this candidate would ideally have teaching interests in one or more of the following additional areas: organizational change and development, program evaluation, community development, public management, and/or civic engagement.

Candidates with government or non-profit work experience, teaching experience, and an established research record are also of special interest.

Department of Public and Health Administration College of Business and Public Management University of La Verne La Verne, CA 91750

American University (2 position)

American University’s School of Public Affairs invites applications from scholars conducting significant research in the areas of health policy and urban/metropolitan governance. These two positions are part of the school’s strategic expansion of research and teaching focused on health policy, security policy, and urban/metropolitan governance. The positions will be housed in the Department of Public Administration and Policy and will begin in August 2014. Both appointments will be made with tenure at the rank of associate or full professor. Successful candidates will have an opportunity to play a critical role in helping to shape the university’s expanding research programs in these areas.

Qualifications: Applicants must meet the university’s standards for appointment with tenure at the associate or full professor level. Applicants should have a Ph.D. and a strong record of research in health policy or urban/metropolitan governance. Candidates with a record of funded research or leadership experience in university research centers or institutes are strongly preferred.

Duties: The appointed individuals will have research, teaching, and service expectations commensurate with appointed rank. Primary teaching duties will be in the school’s Master of Public Administration, Master of Public Policy, and Ph.D. programs. The individuals will also be expected to collaborate across units to strengthen the university’s research programs in health policy or urban/metropolitan governance, as well as mentor junior faculty and doctoral students doing work in these areas.

Application Process: Review of applications will begin on October 1, 2013, and continue until the position is filled. Please send a letter of interest and current CV with a list of references to dpapssearch@american.edu with the subject line, “Urban/Metropolitan Governance Search” or “Health Policy Search.”

About American University: The School of Public Affairs at American University offers a range of undergraduate, graduate, and executive programs across the departments of Government; Justice, Law, & Criminology; and Public Administration & Policy. It is home to ten research centers and institutes, 85 full-time faculty, 65 full-time professional staff, and numerous adjunct and visiting faculty. Its graduate programs are consistently ranked among the best in the field of public affairs by U.S. News & World Report.

American University is a tobacco and smoke free campus. American University is an AA/EEO university committed to a diverse faculty, staff, and student body. Women and minority candidates and candidates with physical disabilities are strongly encouraged to apply.

University of Minnesota (1 position)

The Humphrey School of Public Affairs at the University of Minnesota seeks applications to fill a tenure-track position at the Assistant/Associate professor level in public and nonprofit/NGO leadership and management. The successful candidate must have strong and demonstrated teaching, research, and public engagement interests in public and nonprofit management or in directly relevant fields. Areas of particular interest include organizational theory and behavior, public and nonprofit management, international nongovernmental and governmental organizations, and cross-sector collaboration and governance. Additionally, the Humphrey School would welcome applicants with interest in global issues of social justice, human rights, and environmental, health and economic inequalities as they relate to organization-based activities, leadership and management.

Candidates must be willing and able to contribute in rank-appropriate ways to the school, teach in the school’s core curriculum, provide leadership to its master’s and Ph.D. programs, demonstrate a willingness to help prepare students for careers in public affairs, and function collaboratively in a multi-disciplinary college and with external constituencies.

The Humphrey School of Public Affairs inspires, educates, and supports innovative leaders to advance the common good in a diverse world. The school is NASPAA-accredited, highly ranked nationally, and boasts the country’s third-ranked nonprofit management program. The School is widely recognized for its role in examining public issues and shaping public policy at the local, state, national, and international levels, and for providing leadership and management expertise to public and nonprofit organizations.

A Ph.D. or equivalent terminal degree is required in public policy, public administration, nonprofit management, management, political science, sociology, psychology, anthropology, history, communication, economics, law, urban planning, or related fields with a focus on public and nonprofit management. We seek someone whose approach to teaching and research is innovative and inclusive in terms of race, gender, class and ethnicity. All But Dissertation (ABD) candidates will be considered, contingent upon completion of all doctoral requirements by the beginning date of the appointment.

Applications should include a curriculum vita, the names and addresses of three references, a sample of recent research, and a brief account of research and teaching interests and experience. Applications will be reviewed beginning September
Elizabeth Garrett, USC Provost, who holds a joint faculty appointment in the Price School, was named a 2013 Harold Lasswell Fellow of the American Academy of Political and Social Science (AAPSS).

Janet Denhardt, Director of the Price School in Sacramento, was awarded the Charles Levine Memorial Award for Excellence in Public Administration, presented jointly by ASPA and NASPAA, for demonstrating excellence in teaching, research and service to the wider community.

Emeritus Prof. Chester Newland (Price School) also received the George Graham Award for exceptional service by the National Academy of Public Administration (NAPA), in November, 2012.

USC Price expanded its presence in the Washington, D.C. area through an endowment to collaborate with the Fred W. Smith National Library for the Study of George Washington at Mount Vernon, which will provide unique research opportunities in both locations. In South America, the Price School signed an MOU with the State of São Paulo, Brazil, to further educational and research exchanges in community and economic development, urban governance, environmentally sustainable development, transportation, and real estate and housing.

22, 2013 and will continue until the position is filled. The position will remain open until filled. Please submit applications online at: employment.umn.edu/applicants/Central?quickFind=113244. Address cover letters to: Prof. Melissa Middleton Stone, Chair of PNP Search, c/o Human Resources, Humphrey School of Public Affairs, 152 Humphrey Center, 301-19th Avenue South, Minneapolis, MN 55455, chil0032@umn.edu.

Salary will be commensurate with experience. Benefits include health, dental, faculty life/disability insurance, retirement, and social security. The starting date for this appointment is August 25, 2014, or as soon thereafter as possible.

The University of Minnesota is committed to the policy that all persons shall have equal access to its programs, facilities and employment without regard to race, creed, religion, color, sex, national origin, disability, age, veteran status, marital status, public assistance status, or sexual orientation.

University of Michigan-Dearborn (1 position)

The University of Michigan-Dearborn’s Department of Social Sciences is seeking candidates for a tenure track appointment as an assistant professor of Political Science to begin September 1, 2014. Candidates must have a commitment to teaching excellence at the undergraduate and graduate level, strong methodological skills, and a demonstrated record of research productivity. The candidate’s primary area of specialization should be in the area of administration of financial resources for governmental and nonprofit organizations. We will also consider applications from candidates with expertise in nonprofit administration or assessment and evaluation for governmental and nonprofit organizations. The teaching load is three courses per semester.

The candidate will be expected to play a significant role in our 100-student Master of Public Administration program within the Department of Social Sciences. In addition to teaching responsibilities, the candidate will be expected to serve as an academic advisor, mentor and advisor for student research, develop curriculum, undertake a sustained program of scholarship, provide leadership across the campus, and participate in community outreach and engagement.

Required Qualifications: Preference will be given to candidates who have a Ph.D. in Public Administration, Political Science, Public Policy, or a related field at the time of appointment, but consideration will be given to those who are very close to completing their Ph.D. Candidates must be able to teach graduate and undergraduate courses in public and nonprofit administration. Preference will be given to candidates who can teach public and nonprofit financial management. Candidates who can teach courses in assessment and evaluation will also be considered.

How to Apply: Applicants should submit a cover letter indicating their teaching and research interests, a curriculum vitae, graduate transcripts, writing sample, evidence of teaching effectiveness, and three letters of recommendation to the search chair. Review of applications will begin October 15, 2013, but applications will be accepted until the position is filled. Send all materials to
Dr. Mitchel Sollenberger, University of Michigan-Dearborn, Department of Social Sciences, 4901 Evergreen Road, Dearborn, MI 48128.

Background Screening: The University of Michigan conducts background checks on all job candidates upon acceptance of a contingent offer and may use a third party administrator to conduct background checks. Background checks will be performed in compliance with the Fair Credit Reporting Act.

Application Deadline: We will begin reviewing applications on October 15, 2013, but will accept applications until the position is filled. Currently, this classification is considered exempt in compliance with the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA).

U-M EEO/AA Statement: The University of Michigan-Dearborn is dedicated to the goal of building a culturally diverse and pluralistic faculty committed to teaching and working in a multicultural environment and strongly encourages applications from minorities and women. The University is an equal opportunity/affirmative action employer.

Florida State University (1 position)

The Askew School of Public Administration and Policy of the Florida State University, offering one of the oldest NASPAA accredited MPA programs and a Ph.D. Program, has a tenure track opening at the assistant professor level. We welcome applicants from all fields of public administration and policy who show excellent research and teaching records or potential and strong quantitative and/or qualitative research methods skills. Some teaching of MPA methods classes is expected. Teaching and research expertise in the management of financial, human, or information resources, local government, or nonprofit management are desirable as is an ability to help the Askew School advance a global perspective in our field.

Located in Florida’s capital city, the Askew School offers extensive opportunities for research, as well as networking with practitioners. The School has repeatedly been recognized as having one of the top ten faculties nationally as measured by the number of refereed articles published in the journals of our field. Four centers operate through the Askew School: The Center for Civic and Nonprofit Leadership which serves domestic nonprofits and international NGOs; the Center for Florida Local Government Excellence, which is sponsored and funded by several of Florida’s local governance professional organizations; and the Center for Disaster Risk Management, which has extensive domestic and international activities. The Askew School also includes the Florida Center for Public Management which offers the nation’s largest Certified Public Manager program with full-time trainers. Standard teaching assignment is 2+2 and salary is competitive.

Applications especially are invited from minority candidates. The Florida State University is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer. Submit C.V., succinct evidence of teaching ability, and three letters of reference to: Chairperson, Search Committee, Askew School of Public Administration and Policy, Florida State University, Tallahassee, FL 32306-2250. Review of applications will begin October 31, 2013 and continue until the position is filled.
University of Illinois at Chicago (1 position)

The Department of Public Administration in the College of Urban Planning and Public Affairs (CUPPA) of the University of Illinois at Chicago (UIC) invites nominations and applications for the position of Department Head. The successful candidate will provide leadership for the growth of the department and a vision for its continued excellence in research, teaching, and service. The department offers two graduate degrees: the Master in Public Administration (MPA), which is fully accredited by NASPAA, and the Ph.D. The department also co-directs an undergraduate degree program (BA in Urban and Public Affairs) with CUPPA’s Urban Planning and Policy program. The department has 12 tenured and tenure-track faculty, approximately 150 MPA students, and 31 Ph.D. students (http://cuppa-pa.uic.edu/).

Located just west of Chicago’s Loop, UIC is a Carnegie Research University (very high research activity) / Comprehensive Doctoral. It enrolls 28,000 students and is the largest public research university in the Chicago area. CUPPA was created in 1995 as part of UIC’s Great Cities Initiative. It houses two academic programs (Public Administration and Urban Planning and Policy). The college also hosts nine research centers: the Survey Research Laboratory, the Great Cities Institute, the Urban Transportation Center, the Institute for Research on Race and Public Policy, the Great Cities Urban Data Visualization Lab, the Center for Urban Economic Development, the Institute for Policy and Civic Engagement, the Science, Technology and Environment Policy Laboratory and the Voorhees Center for Neighborhood and Community Improvement.

Professional Qualifications and Duties: The Head is the chief administrative officer of the department with responsibility for instructional programs and for administrative, budgetary, promotion, and recruitment matters. The Department Head also represents the department within the college and the university and in the larger public administration professional community as well as within the State of Illinois and the Chicago metropolitan area.

The successful candidate will have a distinguished scholarship record commensurate with the rank of full professor, a strong record of external funding or exemplary awards, a strong teaching record, and appropriate academic administrative experience. The area of specialization is open as long as it enhances existing faculty strengths. Preference will be given to candidates with substantial backgrounds in one or more of the six core competencies of the department: public finance and financial management, science and technology policy, organizational theory and public management, survey research methods, local government administration, and nonprofit management. Applications from underrepresented minorities are especially encouraged.

Application Procedure: To apply, please submit a complete on-line application and upload a complete curriculum vitae, a statement of qualifications, and the names and contact information of three references at http://jobs.uic.edu/job-board/job-details?jobID=35524

Questions about the position can be directed to Professor Rebecca Hen-Hendrick, Chair, Public Administration Search Committee, Department of Public Administration (M/C 278), University of Illinois at Chicago, 412 S. Peoria St., Chicago, IL 60607-7064 hendrick@uic.edu; 312.355.0305). The search committee will begin reviewing applications on October 15, 2013. For information about the application process please contact Ms. Jaime Masterson at 312-413-3375 or at jaime43@uic.edu. The University of Illinois is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer.

Bucknell University (1 position)

The Departments of Economics and Political Science and the School of Management invite applications for the MacArthur Professorship in Public Policy to begin August 2014. The MacArthur Professorship was established with a grant from the John D. and Catherine MacArthur Foundation to assist in bringing new and promising faculty members to their institutions. This position is to be an open-rank, tenure-track faculty position and is open to applicants from Economics, Political Science, Public Policy, Management, and related social science disciplines.

We seek candidates with a substantive teaching and/or research focus on energy policy or health policy. Further, because the University values undergraduate research, we are seeking someone with a commitment to teaching undergraduate social science methods using quantitative and/or qualitative approaches. Finally, we expect the MacArthur Professor to use teaching and research to involve Bucknell students in addressing some of the pressing twenty-first century public policy challenges, with a preference on teaching and researching that examines impacts on underrepresented populations. Scholars approaching these issues from global or comparative perspectives are invited to apply. For additional information, please go to http://jobs.bucknell.edu.

Texas A&M University (5 positions)

The Bush School of Government & Public Service, Texas A&M University’s academic college which serves as a graduate school of public and international affairs, continues to expand its faculty, programs and student enrollments, and to focus on key strategic initiatives. Its two professional master’s degree programs in Public Service and Administration and in International Affairs are in the process of becoming distinct academic departments during the current academic year. Each program attracts high caliber students from throughout the United States and abroad to study with an accomplished multidisciplinary faculty committed to teaching, research and civic engagement. The School is also playing a key role in high priority multidisciplinary research at Texas A&M University that focuses on several grand challenges facing the nation: environmental policy and management, health policy and management, and strengthening democracy internationally. The School expects to appoint one or more senior distinguished faculty members in these priority areas. The Bush School encourages faculty scholarship through robust professional development opportunities and affiliated research institutes, and its substantial endowments provide both student scholarship assistance and faculty support through chairs and professorships. Additional information is available at http://bush.tamu.edu. The Bush School invites nominations and applications for multiple faculty positions effective no later than September 1, 2014, as enumerated below.

International Affairs Department Head. The Bush School of Government and Public Service at Texas A&M University invites nominations and applications for the position of Professor and Department Head of International Affairs, with related responsibilities for the academic operation of graduate certificate programs in Advanced International Affairs, National Security Affairs and China Studies. The master's program and its related certificate offerings seek to provide students with a superior professional education for careers in international affairs within government, international organizations or non-governmental organizations. The 48 credit hour professional degree combines required and elective classes with a foreign language requirement, leadership and communication development, internship opportunities, and an integrative capstone research project. The complementary graduate certificate programs provide 12 credit hours of transcripted and degree transferable courses delivered in a range of modalities on campus, online and/or in executive education format. The department will also work closely with the Scowcroft Institute of International Affairs to foster policy-oriented research on international affairs. The Bush School is a member of the Association of Professional Schools of International Affairs and its faculty blend theory and practice in a research intensive graduate setting.

The duties of the Department Head encompass the functions normally required for the administration of a research university, including the supervision of curriculum development, review and revision; instructional activities and course scheduling; program planning and assessment; recruitment, review and development of the faculty; budget development and management; and student recruitment, admissions and counseling. The successful candidate will assume a 10.5 month academic administrative appointment, normally for a four year renewable term, as a tenured professor of international affairs beginning as early as August 1, 2014, with the possibility of holding an endowed chair. He or she will meet qualifications required of a tenured professor, including a Ph.D. in political science, economics or related social science discipline relevant to international affairs, an outstanding record of research and scholarship, demonstrated success in graduate level teaching, professional leadership in international affairs, and participation in public discourse on international affairs and foreign policy. In addition, the successful candidate should have a substantial record of professional and university service, with a special emphasis on graduate education and research, and provide evidence of excellent leadership, communication and management skills demonstrated through leadership roles in universities, government, organizations or associations. Successful academic administrative experience in higher education is preferred as is a demonstrated commitment to professional education and knowledge of diverse instructional modalities.

Send nominations and applications (letter of interest, curriculum vitae, and the names of three references) to Dr. Arnold Vedlitz, Executive Associate Dean (preferably as electronic attachments to Ms. Rane Cunningham at BushSchool-GBS-search@tamu.edu), The Bush School of Government and Public Service, Texas A&M University, 4220 TAMU, College Station, TX 77843-4220. Review of applications will begin October 15, 2013 and will continue until the position is filled. Texas A&M University is an equal opportunity, affirmative action employer committed to diversity.

National Security and Development. The Bush School of Government and Public Service at Texas A&M University invites nominations and applications for a senior full professor to provide leadership for its research and teaching programs in national security and development in conjunction with a campus-wide academic initiative on strengthening democracy across the world. Housed in its Master of International Affairs Program, which is in the process of becoming a distinct academic department, this individual will play an active role in linking the security and development policy expertise of the Bush School with other units on campus to help develop multidisciplinary teams to compete for external funding and heightened national recognition as part of the University’s emphasis on addressing grand challenges and key areas of societal impact. We seek a senior scholar with excellent publications and research accomplishments, including candidates with extramural funding who hold the Ph.D. and can be awarded the rank of full professor with tenure. Salary and start-up support are commensurate with someone of distinguished academic stature. We wish to recruit an academic leader able to address a wide range of challenges to democracy globally to include such illustrative topics as effective strategies and policies for national security, diplomacy, foreign policy, terrorism and conflict resolution; strategies for failed and non-democratic states; developing and evaluating political, legal, social and economic institutions to serve a democratizing world; the role of international agreements and both governmental and non-governmental organizations; and enabling democracies through reduced disparities in food, health and income. Applicants should send a formal letter of interest, curriculum vitae, and the names of three references to Ambassador Larry Napper, c/o Ms. Janeen Wood (preferably as electronic attachments to Bush-SchoolMPIA-facultysearch@tamu.edu), The Bush School of Government & Public Service, Texas A&M University, 4220 TAMU, College Station, TX 77843-4220. Review of applications will begin as early as October 15, 2013 and will continue until the position is filled. Texas A&M University is an equal opportunity, affirmative action employer committed to diversity.

Public Management: The Bush School of Government and Public Service at Texas A&M University invites nominations and applications for a tenure-track assistant or tenured associate professor in public management to teach in its Master of Public Service and Administration Program, which is in the process of becoming a separate department. This individual will play an active role in core public administration courses and in the Program’s public management track. Of particular interest are scholars with specialty interests in homeland security, disaster preparedness, budgeting, and the role of organizational networks in policy implementation. Successful applicants must have a Ph.D. by the beginning of employment in September 2014 and must demonstrate a commitment to high quality research and teaching in a professional school of public affairs. Applicants should send a formal letter of interest, curriculum vitae, three letters of recommendation, and a sample of research to Professor William West, c/o Ms. Kimberly Reeves (preferably as electronic attachments to BushSchoolMPSA-facultysearch@tamu.edu), The Bush School of Government & Public Service, Texas A&M University, 4220 TAMU, College Station, TX 77843-4220. Review of applications will begin October 15, 2013 and will continue until the position is filled. Texas A&M University is an equal opportunity, affirmative action employer committed to diversity.

Environmental and Natural Resources Policy and Management: The Bush School of Government and Public Service at Texas A&M University invites nominations and applications for a senior full professor to lead its research and teaching programs in the environment and natural resources policy and management field in its Master of Public Service and Administration Program which is in the process of becoming an academic department. This individual will play an active role in linking the environmental and natural resources policy and management expertise of the Bush School with other units on campus to help develop multidisciplinary teams to compete for external funding as part of the University’s emphasis on addressing grand challenges and key areas of societal impact. We seek a senior scholar with excellent publication and funded research accomplishments in the environment and natural resources policy and management field who holds the Ph.D. and can be awarded the rank of full professor with tenure. Salary and start-up support are commensurate with someone of distinguished academic stature. We wish to hire a leader who understands the scientific and policy issues and can integrate a research agenda able to connect with decision makers, policy forums, NGO’s and agencies. Applicants should send a formal letter of interest, curriculum vitae, and the names of three references to Professor William West, c/o Ms. Kimberly Reeves (preferably as electronic attachments to BushSchoolMPSA-facultysearch@tamu.edu), The Bush School of Government & Public Service, Texas A&M University, 4220 TAMU, College Station, TX 77843-4220. Review of candidates will begin as early as October 15, 2013 and will continue until the position is filled. Texas A&M University is an equal opportunity, affirmative action employer committed to diversity.

Health Policy and Management: The Bush School of Government and Public Service at Texas A&M University invites nominations and applications for a senior full professor to lead its research and teaching programs in the health policy and management field in its Master of Public Service and Administration Program, which is in the process of becoming an academic department. This individual will play an active role in linking the health policy and management expertise of the Bush School with other units on campus to help develop multidisciplinary teams to compete for external funding as part of the University’s to compete for external funding as part of the University’s emphasis on addressing grand challenges and key areas of societal impact. We seek a senior scholar who holds the Ph.D. and has excellent publication and funded research accomplishments in the health policy and management field, qualifying for the rank of full professor with tenure. Salary and start-up support are commensurate with someone of distinguished academic stature. Applicants should send a formal letter of interest, curriculum vitae, and the names of three references to Professor William West, c/o Ms. Kimberly Reeves (preferably as electronic attachments to Bush-SchoolMPA-facultysearch@tamu.edu), The Bush School of Government & Public Service, Texas A&M University, 4220 TAMU, College Station, TX 77843-4220. Review of candidates will begin as early as October 15, 2013 and will continue until the position is filled. Texas A&M University is an equal opportunity, affirmative action employer committed to diversity.

University of Hawai‘i at Manoa (1 position)

Assistant Professor, Public Administration Program, University of Hawai‘i at Manoa, position 84818, 9-month appointment, permanent, full-time, tenure track in Public Administration, general funds, subject to position clearance and availability of funds, to begin August 1, 2014. Public Administration is a graduate program within the College of Social Sciences that offers an MPA and two graduate certificates (www.puba.hawaii.edu). The Program’s mission is to build public service leadership and the campus plays a unique role in bridging Hawaiian, Asian and Pacific cultures through education, research, and service.

Duties: Teach in the Public Administration core curricula, elective courses, capstone, and provide assistance with practicum/internship, 2-2-3 equivalent teaching load. Supervise and advise graduate students. Undertake scholarly and applied work, including obtaining external research funding, consistent with the purposes of the Program. Participate in department, college, university, and professional activities.

Minimum Qualifications: Ph.D. in public administration, or a closely related field (ABD will be considered). Demonstrated research and teaching interests in comparative or international public administration or public management with specific interest in one or more of the following: public service employment and personnel practices, energy and sustainability issues, globalization, organization theory, and community engagement/development.

Desirable Qualifications: Experience in Asia and the Pacific. Commitment to and scholarly record of interdisciplinary and multicultural education relevant to the teaching, research and application missions of the Program and College.

Salary: Commensurate with experience and record of achievement.

To Apply: Electronic applications only: http://surveys.socialsciences.hawaii.edu/ework/ Submit online a curriculum vitae; two writing samples, at least one of which you are sole author; and a cover letter indicating how you satisfy the minimum and desirable qualifications to Chair, Search Committee. Please have your three letters of reference submitted via email to pubadmin@hawaii.edu. Review of applications will begin 10/15/13, and will continue until the position is filled. Applications received by that date will be given priority. Inquiries to Storm Stoker at ss-toker@hawaii.edu or 808-956-8260.

related policy.

Review of applications will begin immediately and continue until the position is filled. Appointment will be effective September 1, 2011. Interested candidates should submit a letter of interest, curriculum vitae and names of three references to: Dr. Carl L. Figliola, Chair, Department of Health Care & Public Administration, Hoxie Hall Room 100, College of Management, C.W. Post Campus of Long Island University, 720 Northern Blvd., Brookville, New York 11548-1300. Application materials can also be sent electronically to carl.figliola@liu.edu.

University of Missouri-Columbia
(1 position)

The Harry S Truman School of Public Affairs seeks applications and nominations for a tenure-track position as assistant or associate (preferred) professor with teaching and research interests in public/nonprofit management. Primary responsibilities of the positions include: 1) Conducting a program of research leading to scholarly publications 2) Teaching graduate courses in the MPA and Ph.D. programs 3) Participating in outreach and public service activities as well as internal service Applicants for this position are expected to demonstrate high potential for scholarly research and publication as well as teaching excellence at the assistant level, and at the associate level, a strong record of publication and teaching excellence. An earned doctorate (discipline open) is required at the time of appointment.

The University of Missouri-Columbia is one of only 34 public universities that has membership in the Association of American Universities and is classified by the Carnegie Foundation as a Doctoral/Research Extensive Institution. The Harry S Truman School of Public Affairs is one of fourteen free-standing schools and colleges at the University. The Truman School has regularly been ranked among the nation’s top schools of public affairs. It has a multidisciplinary, research-oriented faculty of more than 35 (including many with joint appointments in collaborating units) and houses numerous research centers and institutes. The University of Missouri is an equal opportunity employer. Minorities and women are encouraged to apply. To request ADA accommodation, please contact Human Resource Services at 573-882-7976. TTY users, please call through Relay Missouri, 1-800-RE-LAY (735-2966) or en Español at 1-800-520-7309. Application should be submitted online at http://hrs.missouri.edu/find-a-job/academic/index.php

Please be prepared to attach a letter of application, vita, three letters of reference and other supporting materials. Questions regarding the application should be directed to mpshrsupport@musystem.edu or 573-882-7976. Questions about the position should be directed to:

Dr. Michael Diamond, Chair of the Search Committee
239 Middlebush Hall
School of Public Affairs
University of Missouri-Columbia
Columbia, MO 65211

Screening will begin October 1, 2013, but applications will be accepted until the position is filled.
Management Matters
THE PMRA NEWSLETTER

PMRA Secretariat
School of Public Affairs & Administration
University of Kansas
4060 Wescoe Hall
1445 Jayhawk Blvd.
Lawrence, KS 66045